Garry Stewart's work in London 12 years ago it was described by The Times as 'the most hazardous explosion of movement seen in London in years'. Since then Australian Dance Theatre has gone on to astound audiences around the globe with its uniquely powerful style of contemporary dance and celebrates its 50th anniversary in 2015.

Now Australian Dance Theatre is performing acclaimed choreographer Garry Stewart's Be Your Self in the Barossa. 9 outstanding dancers portray an emotional world in which Garry Stewart poses the question what am I? How do you define a human being and what does it take to be you? This extraordinary piece is one of Garry Stewart's most composite works to date. It will leave you wondering – what else is possible with the human body as a means of physical expression?

"...an exhilarating dance work that is entertaining to watch and interesting to think about.... a constantly moving jigsaw of limbs and torsos."

★★★★½ – Sydney Morning Herald.

- The duration of the performance is 60 mins
- The performance is recommended for ages 12+ only.

WARNING: The performance contains haze and strobe lighting.
